GIRL RELATES STORY OF HOW SHE SHOT MILLIONAIRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—While several prisoners were being sentenced yesterday Lillian Graham and Ethel Conrad, on trial for shooting W. E. W. Stokes, set side by side in the court room. Miss Conrad patted Lillian's hand and whispered to her until it came time for Miss Graham to go on the witness stand.

When the case was called Miss Graham raised her veil and took the stand. Assistant District Attorney Buckner, continuing his cross-examination, asked about the visit the girls made on May 31, eight days before the shooting, to a department store, where they bought the revolver with which they shot Stokes. Miss Graham said they had no intention of buying a revolver when they entered.

She denied all insinuations that she and her friend had ever planned over the telephone how they could lure Stokes within reach. "Did Miss Conrad tell you," continued the prosecutor, "that it was a pretty easy thing to get a man to sign a statement with a gun in your hand?"

Miss Graham testified that she did not look for Stokes on June 7, and did not think Miss Conrad called him up over the telephone that afternoon and asked him to come. Coming down to the night Stokes was shot, Miss Graham said she thought she had gone to Europe and was surprised to see her. She admitted that she was angry with him for what he had told Miss Conrad about her and her sister.

The witness rehearsed the story of how Stokes had throttled her and pushed her down the hall and into her bedroom and against a bureau, and how she had reached into an open drawer behind her and got the revolver with which she shot him.

BROTHER IN BOTH CRIME AND BLOOD NOW AT WORK IN PRISON JUTE MILL

The McNamaras Take a Second Lesson Under Tutorship of Burglar—Federal Grand Jury Convenes Again.

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., Dec. 13.—"James B. McNamara has not been examined yet by the prison physician for tuberculosis and it is impossible to state when he may," said Warden John E. Hoyle yesterday.

Heretofore the rule has been to make no exception when the prisoner's illness can be seen, the warden explained.

The McNamaras began their second lesson in the jute mill, under the tutelage of a 15-year-old burglar, according to prison routine.

Owing to his familiarity with printing machinery, James B. has appeared the quicker of the brothers in mastering the mechanism. The working of a loom is not simple, and several weeks are allowed prisoners for learning.

RESCUE PARTY IN BURNING MINE AT BRICEVILLE RECEIVE A MESSAGE FROM BURIED MEN

Maddened Men Running Wildly Through the mine—Write on Walls of Shaft Telling Direction They Have Taken.

BRICEVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 13.—Additional signs of life were discovered in the Cross Mountain mine at 11 o'clock yesterday. On the falls of the shaft were found inscribed these words:

"We have gone to 23."

Immediately the rescue squads redoubled their efforts to reach cross section No. 23 of the mine. It is believed several of the blast victims will be found there.

At first the inscription was believed to be the grim humor of one of the trapped miners, but a crudely drawn "index hand" aimed at entry No. 23 pointed out the way.

The rescue party penetrated into entry No. 23. No miners were found there but additional directions for their rescue were found scrawled in chalk on the walls. They evidently were compelled to change their vantage points on account of the altering air conditions. The rescue squad pressed on in the direction indicated by the chalk marks.

At 11 o'clock a total of 30 bodies had been removed.

Stricken mad, probably from fear inspired by their plight, two miners who had been with the party rescued last night, are now dashing wildly in and out of the channels in the far recesses of the mine.

All night long men of the rescue squad have been chasing the maniacs, but just as soon as would-be rescuers got close to their trail, the mad men would dash away, screaming wildly.

The maddened miners are believed to be John Duff and John Smith. News of their plight is being kept from their families who have given them up for dead.

A feature of the rescue work is
